

LET'S TALK ABOUT GENERATIONAL WEALTH.

Not everyone is dealt the same economic opportunities to succeed in life. Many Washingtonians cannot benefit from generational wealth, such as inheriting a home, paying for school, or coming into a trust fund to support their future.

Washington has always been a leader in fighting poverty. Now, we have an opportunity to be a champion in establishing economic security for generations to come.

WASHINGTON FUTURE FUND

HOUSE BILL 1661/ SENATE BILL 5541

will invest $25,000 grants to 40 eligible young adults to invest in education, purchasing a home, or starting a business. Put another way, it will give wealth-building opportunities to Washingtonians who do not have access to capital or generational wealth due to systemic and economic inequities.

will measure the impacts of how financial government investments can interrupt generational poverty and pivot the economic future of the next generation. It will provide the state legislature with data showing that meaningful, long-term investments can directly improve people's material conditions.

In practice, the State Treasurer Service Fund will establish and administer this small-scale pilot.
